AB approves bylaw addition to provide funding to RSOs

BY ROB STROUD
and MINDY BUYCK
Staff writers

The Apportionment Board Monday passed an addition to their bylaws that would provide funding for activities and programs sponsored by recognized student organizations.

AB Vice Chair Jeanie Rzepka said if the addition is approved by the Student Senate it will give RSOs the opportunity to bring a wider variety of activities to the university.

The bylaw change will be on the senate's agenda tonight, but it can not be approved until next week.

The bylaw addition states that any RSO interested in funding for its activities must attend a budget seminar during the second week of September.

To be eligible for funding through the AB, the activity or program must take place on campus and provide entertainment and/or cultural enhancement to a "significant" portion of the university's community.

The bylaw will create a new account just for funding RSO programs. More than one organization can sponsor a single activity or program and all profits from the activity will go into the reserve account.

The money for the new account will be taken out of the activity fee money, which currently is divided between the senate, the Division of Sports and Recreation, University Board, Dramatic Performances and the AB.

During the second week of October, any RSO seeking funding must submit a written application. The application should describe the program and activity and explain its benefits and costs.

The AB would then form a subcommittee consisting of three voting AB members, headed by the AB vice chair, to review the applications. The AB will then

More than 100 students may need to find alternative college funding

BY ROB STROUD

The possible elimination of the state's legislative scholarships may force more than 100 Eastern students to find other means to fund their college education.

John Flynn, director of financial aid, said the state's legislative scholarships, one type of a tuition waiver from the state, might not be available for much longer because Illinois House Speaker Michael Madigan Thursday called for an end to the state's legislative scholarship program.

A series of articles written by the Associated Press and the Champaign News Gazette last year revealed that many state legislators were giving the waivers to family, friends and political allies.

This caused the state legislature to require the names of the students who receive these scholarships to be made public.

"It has caused enough flack that they will probably do away with the program," Flynn said.

The state has allowed legislators to give out scholarships to students from their district since 1907.

Flynn said more than 100 Eastern students are receiving legislative scholarships this year.

"They'll either apply to receive additional financial aid or do without a tuition waiver," Flynn said.

Although the cost of going to college has tripled

Professors react to Edgar signing voting legislation

By MATT ADRIAN
Campus editor

Eastern professors said they thought partisan politics, not a concern for improving the election process, motivated Gov. Jim Edgar to sign legislation to end single vote, straight party balloting in Illinois.

Edgar signed the legislation Friday, which will eliminate straight party voting from non-partisan, primary and consolidated general election ballots. Currently, 30 states already have put an end to the single vote, straight party ballots.

Political science professor Richard Wandling said he thought Edgar approved the legislation in response straight ticket voting in Cook County, which lead to Republicans losing seats in the House of Representatives.

"What concerns me is that it was purely motivated partisan reasons, and not in the spirit of governance," Wandling said.

"It's minor harassment and revenge against the Democrats," said Andrew McNitt, chair of the political science department. McNitt said the legislation would not have a great effect on the make up of the state legislature.

Melinda Mueller, political science professor, said the legislation may make voters make more educated votes.

The professors all said the legislation would hurt voting for smaller election races because people are more likely to vote for more high profile elections such as governor and senatorial races than for local races.

Though the legislation may have been leveled at Democrats, the after effects of the bill may also affect the Republican Party.

Wandling said DuPage County has voted straight ticket Republican in the Students gather at the Delta Sigma Phi house Tuesday night for fraternity rush. The fraternity welcomed about 20 interested students.

Gingrich to pay high price for ethical misconduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a day of dishonor for Newt Gingrich, the House voted for the first time in history to discipline its speaker for ethical misconduct. After months of partisan strife, the vote was a lopsided 395-28 to reprimand Gingrich and impose a $300,000 penalty.

“The penalty is tough and unprecedented,” ethics committee Chairwoman Nancy Johnson, R-Conn., said at the start of a 90-minute debate. Republicans and Democrats agreed that Gingrich had done wrong — indeed he had admitted it — but they clashed over the gravity of his misbehavior.

The partisanship that permeated the two-year investigation was undiminished Tuesday despite the overwhelming vote. At one point, Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., questioned whether Gingrich was “ethically fit” to continue as speaker.

However, most of the 435 seats on the floor — and most in the visitors’ gallery — were empty.

Gingrich was attending meetings in his office and did not watch the debate, said his spokeswoman, Lauren Maddox. When admitting his guilt Dec. 21, Gingrich acknowledged in a written statement that he “brought down on the people’s house a controversy which could weaken the faith people have in their government.” After two years of denials, Gingrich confessed to committee findings that he failed to “seek and follow” legal advice that would have warned him not to use tax-exempt projects to further partisan goals.

He also agreed that he should have known statements submitted under his name — denying his political organization’s connection to the tax-exempt activities — were “inaccurate, incomplete and unreliable.” There were 196 Republicans, 198 Democrats and 1 independent who supported the penalty. Twenty-six Republicans and two Democrats were opposed and five members merely voted “present.” Still unannounced is how Gingrich will pay the $300,000. Some Republicans said he would risk further political uproar if he used campaign money or established a legal defense fund rather than using his own money.

A vote to reprimand a member is reserved for “serious violations” of the rules. The financial penalty, never before imposed, was to reimburse the ethics panel for costs associated with expanding the investigation after Gingrich submitted his misleading statements.

Gingrich’s lawyer, J. Randolph Evans, and ethics committee special counsel James M. Cole watched from members’ seats as Mrs. Johnson told the House, “No one is above the rules.”

determine which groups will give presentations on why they need the funds.

The AB will review the budgets according to AB policies and guidelines. The AB guidelines specify only activities that will improve the quality of student life, that are needed programs on campus, is within the mission of the organization requesting the funds, if AB can afford to expand a program and that will benefit many people.

The bylaw also states meeting funding criteria does not guarantee funding by the AB.

AB Chair Lance Phillips said the new reserve would reduce the amount of money available to the existing fee-funded boards.

Phillips also said he believes this is justified because this gives RSOs the chance to do their own creative programs and will widen what is available to students.

AB member Mike Callice said the new bylaw contradicts with an old bylaw, which stated the funding for new activities cannot detract from continuing programs or activities.

“Even if you just add a dollar, it is going to detract from something,” Callice said.

After two roll call votes, the AB struck the old bylaw from its records.

Rzepka said eliminating the old bylaw would be a temporary solution until all the bylaws are rewritten later this semester.

The AB also went into executive session, where Phillips told the AB members they could expect resistance to the bylaw from some senate members and asked the members to show support for the change.

past, which may lead to the party losing the county as a result of the elimination of straight ticket voting.

Wandling said he thinks the decision to end single vote straight ticket voting will not affect the Democratic campaign in the next election. He said election campaigns are fluid and change all the time.

Both Mueller and McNitt said people will see more split ticket voting as a result of the legislation.

in the past 15 years, colleges and the state can provide students with a way to cut some of these costs.

Flynn said Eastern offers several other kinds of tuition waivers for students.

One type is the Talented Student Award, Flynn said. These tuition waivers are based on the performance of students in their classes, athletics or music, Flynn said.

Flynn said each department awards these waivers, which can be used for a semester or a full year depending on the department.

He said Eastern has issued 243 Talented

Student Awards this financial year and these tuition waivers total over $498,000.

The university also issues Disadvantaged Student Awards, which are for students who are physically handicapped or who have learning disabilities, Flynn said. He did not have the exact figure for the amount of these waivers.

Students can apply for both tuition waivers before or after they start at Eastern, or they can be obtained from the state, Flynn said.

The largest source of state tuition waivers is the Illinois Student Assistant Commission.

“They administer eight or 10 different scholarship programs (a year),” Flynn said.

He said the state also offers scholarships for the children of Eastern staff members, senior citizens and members of the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

Flynn said ending the legislative scholarship program would not directly affect the financial aid program at Eastern.

Along with possibly ending the tuition waivers, Madigan said he is also proposing a state income tax credit of up to $500 for parents or students with an income under $100,000.

He also called for a tuition tax exemption for money set aside for college expenses.

This program will cost the state more than $230 million a year. According to an Associate Press release from Springfield on Thursday, Madigan said a small portion of this cost will come from the elimination of $4.5 million in legislative scholarships. The rest will be made up through Illinois’ revenue growth, which is expected to increase by about $700 million this year.

All-day conference to stress diversity, harmony at Eastern

By ROBERTA REWERS
and DEANA POOLE
Staff writers

An all-day diversity conference will be held Thursday as a result of the large number of students interested in increasing education and awareness of diversity at Eastern. Students, faculty and community members can learn ways to improve relations on campus and in the community by attending the second annual "Opening Doors: Diversity at Eastern" conference from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

"The Office of Civil Rights, Affirmative Action and Diversity coordinated the Unity Rally and 1000 students showing up gave a message of something more wanting to be done," said Patty Rodriguez, student assistant at the Office of Civil Rights. The Office of Civil Rights, Affirmative Action and Diversity will present the conference.

Several workshops aimed to improve racial harmony, student perceptions of racial issues at Eastern and the university's future goals will be held throughout the day so more students can attend.

Annette Samuels, associate professor of journalism, said students, faculty and staff should attend the conference.

"Issues discussed throughout the day have an effect and impact on all of us on the campus," she said.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. and President David Jorns will give opening remarks at 8:45 a.m. in the Union.

The first workshop, "Five Steps in Developing Equity in Programs and Courses," begins at 9 a.m. in the Charleston/Mattoon room of the Union.

J.Q. Adams, associate professor in the Educational Foundations department and the acting director of the African American Students Program at Western Illinois University, will present the workshop.

A "Sexual Harassment and Gender Discrimination" workshop will focus on what to do in cases of sexual harassment and gender discrimination and the effect it has on students.

The workshop begins at 9 a.m. in the Arcola/Tuscola room of the Union and pre-registration is required.

A luncheon, which attracted more than 100 people last year, will be held at 11:30 a.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Union. Pre-registration is required to attend.

Following the luncheon, Adams will give the keynote speech titled, "Diversity, the Challenge for the Future, Working Together," at 12:15 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom.

The workshop titled, "Improving Campus Climate for Students: Skills for Reducing Conflict," will allow students to express their opinions about Eastern and find productive methods of improvement.

The workshop will be held at 1 p.m. in the Charleston/Mattoon room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

"(The purpose is to) try to help students get some insight on ways to help resolve conflict more effectively," said Jeanne Simpson, assistant vice president of academic affairs.

Simpson and William Weber, economics professor, will facilitate the discussion.

Samuels will lead the conference's final workshop of the day by discussing the differences in culture, sexual preference, age, language, religion and physical ability.

"Valuing Diversity: Appreciating Our Differences," will be held at 3:15 p.m. in the Charleston/Mattoon Room of the Union.

The conference concludes with evaluations of the workshops.

Forum planned to inform instructors of technology fees

By CHAD GALLAGHER
Staff writer

A faculty forum is being planned to examine computer purchasing policies and better involve instructors in technology planning within individual departments.

The forum concept arose from faculty complaints over computer service repair and purchasing efficiency and misconceptions regarding how the $80 per-semester fee to departments for that service is being applied, said Faculty Senate Vice Chairman James Tidwell at Tuesday's Faculty Senate meeting.

"We need to determine what roles the departments and administration play in approving and purchasing computers," said senate member John Best.

Senate members also questioned faculty involvement, stressing the importance of instructor input when buying new computers and programs.

"There have been concerns over planning and who is in charge (of computer purchasing decisions)," Tidwell said. "The individual faculty should choose, not those in Old Main, which is how it is happening now, and that is not the way it should be — it is a bridge in academic freedom."

Tidwell went on to encourage a more faculty proactive approach to computer planning even if many instructors are unaware or uninterested in ever-changing technology advances.

"Computer Services is operating without much faculty input," he said. "One problem is that there are not many computer-experienced faculty who can be proactive in decisions."

The senate plans to advertise the forum several weeks before the forum is to be held so questions and concerns can be mailed in if that person can not attend.

A small panel of people well versed in computer technology will answer questions at the forum, which, the senate concluded, will focus mainly on computer purchase planning and policy.

The senate will likely announce the expert panel and date of the forum at next Tuesday's meeting. No speculation was made at the meeting regarding a specific date or month of the faculty forum, which has unofficially been entitled Faculty Forum on University Technology — Policy and Planning.

Community should take part in diversity seminars, workshops

A diversified campus is the most important tool to provide an effective education.

A marketplace of ideas, cultures, visions and history make any environment a learning laboratory for those who have open minds and are willing to listen to new perspectives.

Eastern students in the past have struggled with keeping open minds to different cultures and ideas.

Editorial

Each year, whether through seminars, rallies or conferences, a few students have made an attempt to educate their peers about different cultures and why diversity is an important characteristic.

The same noble attempt will take place Thursday.

The Eastern community can learn ways to improve relations on campus and in Charleston by attending the second annual diversity conference.

"Opening Doors: Diversity at Eastern" will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursday in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union. Opening remarks will be made at 8:45 a.m. by President David Jorns in the University Union.

The day-long conference will consist of several workshops that will help to improve racial harmony, students' perception at Eastern and the university's goals for the future.

Organizers have spread the seminars out throughout the day so everyone may have a chance to attend. In other words, the conference is user-friendly, and all students need to take the opportunity to participate.

Workshops addressing equality in programs and courses, sexual harassment, gender discrimination and the challenge of diversity for the future will be a few topics students can learn about during the conference.

The seminars can help bring Eastern closer together, as well as build better relationships and understanding with people of different cultures.

Eastern needs to be a diverse university.

But for that to happen, students need to take the initiative and participate in Thursday's conference that could steer Eastern into a more positive direction.

So this is how the world will end – not with a bang or a whimper, but with the dry, choking sound of the gears of American brains grinding to a halt.

I had occasion this weekend to watch a little MTV "news" (I was, of course, tied down in front of the television with my eyes propped open by toothpicks). Within the span of three minutes time I was treated to the lead of Marilyn Manson who, I'm fairly certain, was never taught the finer points of hygiene, let alone a nuanced command of the English language, spilling his guts on how discipline (and, inevitably, Christianity) made him the warped creature sitting before us, followed by the reigning king of the loons, Perry Farrell, waxing philosophic on how it used to be "about the music." This three minute dip into dementia, sponsored by the channel whose full time job is to make such diseases trendy was, of course, bracketed by the barely clever, sometimes incomprehensible and always annoying Kurt Loder. He served to, you know, bring synthesis to the whole thing. Now, as both "artists" were amply covered with what can only be described as creative make-up (Manson's face was mime white with black about the lips and eyes while Farrell chose a more subtle polka-dotting of his upper face and forehead) the poignancy of their words was lost in the theatrics, and I am a poorer person for it. Alice Cooper and Nick Rhodes notwithstanding, I guess I'm still a little thrown off by guys in make-up.

A scant three channels (and, it seems, three million intellectual miles) later I found the non-partisan refuge of C-Span. This Brian Lamb fed channel, which is found usually in the rarely visited upper regions of any cable system, has long been a refuge for the politically nerdy and overinformed but has recently touched the sweet, wet mainstream as the only channel to air the Don Imus affair. On this particular morning, as I sat next to my companion, Kate, the channel graced us with a gray-haired gentleman who appeared to be ready to answer a bunch of high schoolers' questions. As Representative Newt Gingrich (R-Ga) was neither wearing make-up nor clad in a frock, Kate wondered (out loud) why he warranted a television appearance. He was up on stage alright, but he wasn't singing or dancing or copulating or trying to date 50 single girls (although, when President Clinton came on later, the same claim could not have been made), so what gives? Well, Newt started answering these kids' surprisingly heady questions, and Kate started getting antsy for Kurt Loder to come on the screen and tell her what to think about it all when a seminal moment in our relationship occurred. Just after Newt mentioned the death of Bill Cosby's son while answering a question about crime in America, Kate actually asked me if Theo was really dead.

Later that day, still dumbfounded, I read that Georgetown University (like other schools) was lifting the Shakespeare requirement for its English majors. Somehow, amongst the frightening stories of 6-year-old girls in beauty pageants and the Oakland Public Schools debacle, the news from Georgetown was what stuck with me. Are we really at the point where we can begin dropping requirements? Can Kate afford less education? Perhaps Hamlet won't help anyone get a job in the 21st Century, but when has that ever been the point (and when did anyone start expecting English majors to get jobs)? What seems to be at risk here is not the body of work of a man (or men) long dead, nor the employability of a generation of college graduates. What seems at risk is a generation who, short on attention span and long on "Brady Bunch" trivia, is no longer forced by its elders to learn and no longer compelled by personal curiosity to discover. With bachelor's degrees merely another increasingly meaningless hoop for us to jump through and more adrenaline our only goal, who's going to save us? Eddie Vedder? Jason Anselment? I dunno (shoulder shrug).

Now you one-step-ahead-of-the-gamers who realize that members of all generations, at one time or another, get so disgusted with their apathetic peers that they take pen to paper in protest in order to create a groundswell of support (inevitably for some pointless social activism), please realize that is not what this is. One great thing about this generation is both its ability and willingness to publicly rant when given a forum. It's cathartic. It's our civic responsibility (just ask Douglas Copeland). Now I've got to go see what Jenny's wearing on "Singled Out."

Biologist looks down on animal dissection in U.S. biology classes

Editor's note: Excerpts were taken from an opinion editorial written by Jonathan Balcombe, a biologist and the associate director for Education, Animal Research Issues with The Humane Society of the United States.

Approximately seven million vertebrate animals are killed each year for dissection in U.S. biology classrooms. To illustrate the magnitude of this many animals, consider that if you lined them all up end to end, they would stretch more than twice the length of California.

And for what purpose? What gains are made when students cut open and explore the insides of frogs and cats and fetal pigs and dogfish sharks? The Humane Society of the United States (HSUS) believes that whatever benefits might arise from dissections, they are far outweighed by the associated costs. Allow me to explain.

First, there is the animal suffering involved. Investigations into the dissection trade have documented, among other abuses, cats being drowned tent at a time in burlap sacks or prodded roughly into crowded gas chambers, rats embalmed with formaldehyde while still living, dozens of live frogs piled into sacks for days or weeks without food and sickly turtles kept in filthy, overcrowded holding tanks. These sorts of conditions appear to be quite commonplace, and though they are inexcusable and sometimes illegal, they are perhaps not surprising in a business where the "merchandise" is going to end up dead anyway.

Then there are human social concerns. A principal goal of life education is to teach respect for life. Dissection is an intrinsically violent exercise; it involves killing, preserving, cutting apart, then discarding an animal. However well-intentioned an instructor's desire to teach respect for animals, the typical dissection exercise will tend to undermine it by devaluing the lives of other creatures to the level of expendable objects ...

Abundant resources are available for learning anatomy, physiology, genetics, toxicology and other animal-related fields that do not require animals to suffer and/or die. These include films, computer simulations, models, books or a trip to the local veterinary clinic. To anyone who simply cannot bear the thought of dispensing with hands-on contact with a preserved animal, human cadavers offer the full-scale experience with the associated ethical problems (people are not killed for the purpose of dissection, and the patient voluntarily donates his/her body) ...

With all the suffering in the world, should we really be adding to it in our education programs? Is dissection necessary when other learning methods have been shown repeatedly to effectively replace it? Is there any justification for animal dissection when it has so many counts – animal suffering, violation of students' sensibilities, mediocre educational merit and environmental disruption – against it? We think not.

Loan ordinance placed on file

By BRITT CARSON
City editor

The Charleston City Council voted to place an ordinance on file for public inspection regarding a Tax Interest Finance loan for $100,000 to Richard Sanderfer.

Part of the money requested is for the purchase of the building which was the Little Mexico restaurant located on 514 Seventh St. The rest of the money requested is for the remodeling of the building. Sanderfer had said he is planning on turning the building into an antique mall.

The commissioners discussed the amount of the loan because TIF loans usually are for around $6,000 or below. City attorney Brian Bower said the ordinance needs to define the type of security or collateral Sanderfer is planning to use for the loan.

Sanderfer planned on using the building as collateral for the loan and using the city as a first mortgage. The loan is for $100,000, at an interest rate of 3.5 percent for five years. Bower suggested the council get the building appraised before voting on the ordinance.

"I suggest we wait until the building is appraised and then formulate policy on what is intended to be the security for this loan," Bower said. The ordinance was an addition to the agenda and many of the commissioners wanted more time to think about the ordinance before approval and were concerned about how to insure the funds would be used appropriately.

"I have not seen a TIF loan this substantial in a while," Commissioner Greg Stewart said. "How are we able to police the use of these funds?"

The council voted to place the ordinance on file for public inspection until the building is appraised and until what will be used as security is defined.

The council also approved a bid for a grit chamber for the waste water treatment plant for $624,000. The bid was from Wortman-Starwalt and suggested two things be added to the grit chamber.

The first addition is a stainless steel chain drive that will be used in filtering large objects from waste water. The second suggestion is for the grit chamber to be explosion proof.

Commissioner Gene Scholes said methane gas, along with other gases, build up and under certain circumstances there is a potential for an explosion. Scholes said ensuring that the grit chamber is explosion proof is a precaution that should be taken to make sure the building is safe.

Senate shows support for RSOs

By MINDY BUYCK
Student government editor

The Student Senate will discuss a new Apportionment Board bylaw that would provide funding for recognized student organizations activities and programs.

The senate also will vote to approve striking an AB bylaw that is in contradiction with the bylaw addition.

Senate Speaker Erin Weed said the senate also will approve a letter drafted by senate member Jennifer Daulby stating the senate's support for RSO funding. Weed said the letter states that RSOs can apply to the senate for funding for special programming.

"We feel it is really important because it's something that will benefit the whole university," Weed said.

Daulby said if the letter is approved the senate plans to publish it in The Daily Eastern News.

Daulby said the plan is not to fund the RSOs themselves but fund the events the RSOs sponsor because all students benefit from the events. The senate will vote on a resolution showing senate's support of AIDS Awareness Week.

Weed also said the senate will hear a presentation about the possible installation of laser jet printers in Lumpkin Hall. She said the printers would require students to pay 10 cents.

Dave Henard, associate vice president of information technology services, and Theodore Ivarie, dean of Lumpkin College of Business Applied Sciences, will give the presentation.

CAA to consider adding two courses to history department

By SCOTT BOEHMER
Staff writer

The Council on Academic Affairs Tuesday will consider adding two courses, which currently are offered as senior seminars, to the history department.

The CAA will meet at 2 p.m. in the Arcola/Tuscola Room in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The two courses, HST 4500 - Historiography of the European Witch Hunts and HST 4600 - The Holocaust, both currently senior seminars.

Anita Shelton, chair of the history department, said the proposed change would keep the classes as senior seminars and add slightly different versions of them that would be geared toward history majors to the history department.

"It's not changing anything from senior seminars to non-senior seminars," Shelton said. Joy Kammerling, assistant professor of history, also will be offering a different version of the course for history majors, Shelton said.

CAA Chair Doug Bock initially said he believed the history department would drop the courses as senior seminars, so Kammerling, who proposed the changes, did not have a course overload. However, Shelton said she or other history professors could teach the new classes.

Bock said CAA members also will hear a report from the General Education Assessment Committee on new criteria for course additions to the integrated core. The report will discuss the third draft of the subcommittee's proposal.

Last semester, the CAA discussed ways to limit the number of classes that compose Eastern's integrated core curriculum. The subcommittee came up with two ways to make sure the number of classes in the core are limited.

A course can be integrated into the core if there are not enough courses for the students to register into, said CAA member Mary Wohlrabe last semester.

Also, if the subcommittee discovered through an assessment that the nine traits and abilities of the core aren't being covered in the current courses, new courses could be added, Wohlrabe said. The nine traits and abilities according to Eastern's catalog are: literacy, reason and ability, quantitative analysis, historical consciousness, scientific awareness, social response, aesthetic literature, multicultural awareness and intellectual curiosity.

"The idea is there's some feeling on campus that the integrated core is already too large," Bock said. "Before we go on adding courses to the integrated core, we want to make sure the campus community understands what criteria will be involved."

Workers to paint Andrews Hall

By RACHEAL CARRUTHERS
Staff writer

Workers will be painting the 248 rooms in Andrews Hall during the next six to eight months.

"The student rooms, hallways, bathrooms and common areas will be painted," Barbara Busch, Andrews hall counselor said "They are painting two rooms a day."

"It will take six to eight months to finish, and that is if we can keep four guys on it all the time," Facilities, Planning and Management Director Ted Weidner said.

Busch said students must take everything off walls and bulletin boards. Students also must move the beds to the center of the room, she said.

"I have posters all over my walls. I don't like it because I have to take them down," Kristyn Dwyer a sophomore undecided major said.

"It's really great that they're painting, but it is a bit of an inconvenience," said Joanna Nance, a junior Spanish education major.

Andrews Halls hasn't been painted in almost 10 years, Busch said.

"The housing buildings are on a rotation and Andrews was next on the list of housing buildings to be painted," Weidner said. Buildings are kept on rotation unless re-painting is not needed, he said.

Weidner said the workers will be using a low odor paint that is still cost effective and will dry fast.

Students will not be able to return to their rooms during the day but they will be allowed back in that night.

Workshop to focus on AIDS, HIV

By DEANA POOLE
Activities editor

Students, faculty and community members can receive HIV and AIDS training certification this weekend by attending a three-day workshop.

The workshop will be held from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday at the Arcola/Tuscola room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union and on Saturday and Sunday in Room 137 of the McAfee Gymnasium.

Ollie Mae Ray, health studies professor and main facilitator of the workshop, said the people who participate in the certification workshop will be trained to educate others about HIV and AIDS.

"(The purpose is) to train peer educators so they can become certified about HIV and AIDS so they can have enough information to assist and help others and have knowledge themselves," Ray said. "I wanted to make sure our community and our school is aware of everything that is happening with HIV and AIDS."

On Friday participants will receive instructional training and an introduction to new facts. The workshop will continue on Saturday and Sunday with sessions on the history of HIV and AIDS, new facts and ways to educate others.

Ray said participants will be required to pass two tests and engage in practice teaching sessions prior to certification.

The workshop will be taught by Tricia Hopin-Price, who works at Southern Illinois University's medical school in Springfield, along with two assistants.

The cost for the workshop is $100, which pays for materials. Scholarships were offered to compensate for the cost.

Currently 12 people are signed up for the workshop and Ray said she expects a few more participants to sign up.

The workshop is sponsored by Health Services, Health studies, African American studies, African American Heritage Committee, Minority Affairs and the Siddall and Ray Foundation and is held in conjunction with the African American Heritage Celebration and Aids Awareness Week.

Britain, China debate civil liberties

HONG KONG (AP) - With Chinese rule less than six months away, Hong Kong is being forced to wonder anew how much freedom it will have after July 1.

Moves by a Chinese-appointed committee to roll back some of Hong Kong's recently won civil liberties have jangled nerves in the British colony, plunging Britain and China into yet another round of harsh verbal exchanges that are marring the momentous change of sovereignty.

At a deeper level, though, the clash reflects the conflicting states of mind of the two powers as they prepare for the final act in this end-of-empire drama.

Britain is determined to occupy the moral ground and end the 156-year colonial chapter with honor. China is equally determined not to bow to the country that grabbed a piece of its territory for a colony.

Prickly attitudes were evident Tuesday when Gov.

Chris Patten denounced the "legal nonsense" of the proposed legal changes, and Chinese spokesman Shen Guofang retorted that China's Communist government would not let itself be pushed around.

"We cannot accept others forcing their ways on us," Shen said.

By now the pattern is familiar. Britain proposes a law. China objects. Britain enacts it anyway. China says it will annul it when it recovers Hong Kong on July 1.

That's what happened when Patten reformed the election system in 1994. China immediately said it would disband whatever legislature was elected under these rules.

Now comes the civil liberties question, which amounts to a clash between two fundamental pieces of legislation, each claiming supremacy over the other.

Edgar expected to propose overhaul

SPRINGFIELD (AP) - Gov. Jim Edgar is expected to propose a school funding overhaul Wednesday that would cut property taxes by $1.5 billion and to suggest the fairest way to offset the loss is with an income tax hike.

But Edgar also will use his State of the State address to signal he is prepared to negotiate and open to suggestions as he challenges lawmakers to finally solve the decades-old problem of school funding, administration sources said Tuesday.

Key to the proposal is closing the gap in per-student spending.

Some school districts in Illinois spend as little as $3,100 per student each year while others spend $14,000.

Edgar's speech comes at a political crossroads for him as he begins his seventh year in office.

The Republican governor has yet to decide whether he will seek reelection to a third term in 1998, run for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Carol Moseley-Braun, D-Ill., or exit public life on his own terms.

His school funding proposal will provide either a new foundation to run for public office again or a chance to be remembered for overhauling the schools if he makes this his last term.

"If we don't get done what I want to get done, that means I might have to stay until we get it done," Edgar says. "So maybe it would be, if they want to get rid of me, that might be an incentive for them to get something done." But he quickly adds he's not making any promises either way.

During his address, Edgar also is expected to mention his desire to come up with a plan to deregulate the electric industry in Illinois. In addition, he plans to tout a new program led by his wife, Brenda, aimed at hooking up state experts with women who have health problems.

Edgar's speech will come two weeks after Senate President James "Pate" Philip, R-Wood Dale, and House Speaker Michael Madigan, D-Chicago, also called for overhauling school funding.

Rodman finally apologizes

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) – Dennis Rodman called Tuesday to say he’s sorry.

The Chicago Bulls star apologized to Target Center cameraman Eugene Amos after agreeing to a $200,000 out-of-court settlement that also assured that Rodman would not face criminal prosecution.

“Both men are going to be going on with their lives,” said Minneapolis lawyer Andrew Luger, who represented Rodman. “They had a cordial conversation that I think allows both of them to move forward without any ill will at all.” Amos has “gone away for two or three weeks,” according to a man who answered Amos’ phone Tuesday but did not identify himself.

In a news release from Luger’s office, Amos said he was “grateful for the professional, expeditious and courteous treatment I have received from Mr. Rodman.” Amos’ lawyer, Gale Pearson, did not return repeated messages left at her office.

Although Luger confirmed a settlement had been reached, he refused to discuss financial terms. A source who asked not to be identified told The Associated Press on Monday the settlement was for $200,000.

That brings the total cost of Rodman’s kick to nearly $1.5 million. The NBA suspended Rodman without pay for at least 11 games and fined him $25,000. The suspension is the second-longest in NBA history and will cost Rodman more than $1.1 million in pay.

Bears name assistant coach

LAKE FOREST (AP) – Matt Cavanaugh, the quarterbacks coach of the San Francisco 49ers last season, was named offensive coordinator of the Chicago Bears on Tuesday.

Cavanaugh was an assistant coach with the Arizona Cardinals for two seasons before joining the 49ers. The 14-year NFL veteran quarterback began his coaching career at Pitt, his alma mater, supervising the Panthers’ tight ends in 1993.

Cavanaugh, 40, was a second-round selection of the New England Patriots in the 1978 draft. He played with the Pats, the 49ers, the Eagles and the Giants and earned Super Bowl rings as a backup with San Francisco and New York.

Cavanaugh started 19 games in his career, completed 53 percent of his passes for 4,332 yards with 28 touchdown passes and 30 interceptions.

Cavanaugh was the MVP of the 1976 Sugar Bowl that clinched a national championship for Pitt.

Mattingly set to formally retire

NEW YORK (AP) – Don Mattingly, the greatest New York Yankees player never to reach the World Series, will never get that chance.

Mattingly, who sat out last season when New York won the championship, is set to formally announce his retirement Wednesday at Yankee Stadium. A news conference has been called for 3 p.m. EST.

A six-time All-Star and a nine-time Gold Glove first baseman, Mattingly hit .307 in a 14-season career. He was the AL MVP in 1985, later became only the 10th player to be named captain of the Yankees and earned the nickname “Donnie Baseball” as a fan favorite in New York.

Mattingly became a free agent after the 1995 season, saying he did not intend to play in 1996.

Alcohol ban lifted for Packers’ Favre

NEW ORLEANS (AP) – Brett Favre’s ban on drinking alcohol has been lifted by the NFL. That doesn’t mean he’ll be tearing up Bourbon Street before the Super Bowl, his agent said Tuesday.

“It’s not like Brett’s jumping stumps to go out drinking,” James “Bus” Cook said from his office in Hattiesburg, Miss.

“He’s not there to go out partying. He’s there to win the Super Bowl.” Cook said Favre, the Green Bay Packers’ two-time MVP quarterback, informed him late last week that the league upheld his appeal to change his status in its substance-abuse program. He will no longer face random testing for alcohol use.

The NFL wouldn’t comment due to the confidentiality of its substance abuse policy. But the league was upset that Favre’s agent spoke publicly about the matter.

NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said commissioner Paul Tagliabue informed Favre and the Packers several weeks ago that a final report on the quarterback’s appeal would be delivered after Green Bay’s season is over.

Teams living large in The Big Easy

NEW ORLEANS (AP) – Young women giggle and call their names as they pass through the hotel lobby. Fans press drinks into their hands as they explore Bourbon Street. Jazz joints jump, strip clubs sparkle.

Life’s a party in New Orleans and the Green Bay Packers and New England Patriots are the guests of honor.

“It’s a wild place and a lot of people are ready to party with you if they can,” Packers guard Lindsay Knapp said. “What we need to do is remember the reason we’re here, and it’s not to have fun in the French Quarter.” True. But there is so much to obscure that sense of purpose.

Away from the practice field, the world is waiting and fun is the first order of business.

Gambling ringleader nabbed

New Yorker arraigned in Boston College gambling connection

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) – James Potter of New York was arraigned Tuesday on charges he ran a sports gambling ring using Boston College student bookmakers.

Potter, 33, pleaded innocent to charges of organizing and promoting gambling services, using a telephone for gaming purposes and conspiracy to organize and promote gambling services, prosecutors said.

Newton district court judge Conrad Bletzer ordered him held on $20,000 cash bail.

Kurt Schwartz, a prosecutor with the Middlesex County District Attorney's office, said Potter and his organization have been present on the Boston College campus since at least 1994.

"This was just a piece of a much bigger operation that he was running in New York," Schwartz said.

Prosecutors said Potter had links to organized crime and employed student bookmakers to take bets from and make payouts on the Boston College campus. Potter's associates allegedly would visit the campus to collect money and meet with student bookies.

Prosecutors said at least one student bookmaker who owed money to Potter's organization was beaten and at least one other was threatened.

Defense attorney Thomas Hoopes, however, said investigators have exaggerated certain aspects of the case, particularly the alleged ties to organized crime.

Three other men face additional gambling charges.

Investigators have identified eight Boston College seniors who allegedly worked as bookmakers on campus. The university has suspended them and has begun disciplinary action against at least 20 other students suspected of making illegal bets on sporting events.

Gambling charges first surfaced in late October before the football team's home game against Notre Dame.

Thirteen football players initially were suspended for violating NCAA rules against gambling. No evidence of point-shaving was found.

Miami's college hoop team affected by weekend arson

MIAMI (AP) – Police are investigating five suspicious fires on the Miami campus since the weekend, including a blaze at the school's basketball offices that caused $100,000 in damage.

The fire hit as the men's team, with an 11-5 record, is off to its best start in 30 years and sits atop the Big East 7 division for the first time since the university joined the conference in 1991. The next game is Wednesday against Connecticut.

"You hope that it wasn't arson, but if it was, we want to make sure we don't let it distract us," coach Leonard Hamilton said.

"We have uniforms, equipment and players and that's all we need. We definitely lost a lot of valuable information, but we can't use that as an excuse."

Smaller fires apparently set in garbage dumps, a tent used for an outdoor arts festival and in an open field may not be related to the Monday morning blaze at the Hecht Athletic Center, Coral Gables police Sgt. Mitch Fry said Tuesday. He said the athletic fire was being investigated as arson. Police found a broken window that could have been used by the arsonist.

"We're really not sure if the other fires have anything in common with this one (at Hecht)," Fry said. "We haven't ruled it out." The basketball teams had to move their practice the day after the fire at the athletic center. And they planned to use football meeting rooms for basketball operations until their own offices can be repaired, said Bob Burda, the school's sports information director.

The fire damaged the basketball office where about eight coaches, managers and employees work, smoke damage extended to a lobby and hallway, and water dripped downstairs. Soot entered the building ventilation system and spread the smoke smell throughout.

Holmgren wins coaching award

NEW ORLEANS (AP) – Mike Holmgren knows that one trip to the Super Bowl, even if the Green Bay Packers win, doesn't put him in the same class as Vince Lombardi.

Holmgren, who coached the Packers to their first Super Bowl appearance in 29 years and tied a franchise record with 13 regular-season victories, was selected by fans as the Visa NFL Coach of the Year.

"I've been a head coach in the NFL for five years, and I still have a long way to go to be mentioned in the same breath as Vince Lombardi," Holmgren said Tuesday after he was presented with the award.

Green Bay won five NFL titles in the 1960s with Lombardi as coach, and the Super Bowl championship trophy is named for him.

Holmgren got 12,280 of the 68,676 votes cast by fans on internet web sites from October to early this month. The award was instituted last year, when it was won by Philadelphia's Ray Rhodes.

"There are a lot of fine coaches in the NFL who did great coaching jobs this year," Holmgren said. "Winning this award is an indication of how fans around the country feel about our team." Dom Capers of Carolina, the NFC West champions, was second with 10,676 votes, and Mike Shanahan of Denver, which led the AFC with 13 victories, was third with 10,212.

The Packers finished 13-3 in the regular season and easily defeated San Francisco and Carolina in the playoffs to reach Sunday's Super Bowl. The team ranked first in the NFL in average yards gained and allowed per game, scored the most points and allowed the fewest.

Like it or not, Rodman should be a role model

Most sports fans remember years ago when Charles Barkley made his "I am not a role model" statement that will live in infamy.

Many athletes forget that no matter how much they do not want to be a role model for today's youth, they are. Dennis Rodman should remember this the next time he assaults a cameraman doing his job.

Rodman's antics in the game last Wednesday night against the Minnesota Timberwolves are nothing short of ridiculous. How dare a cameraman sit under the basket and do his job.

Rodman allegedly kicked cameraman Eugene Amos in the genitals and it cost Rodman an 11 game suspension, over $1 million in lost salary, and a $25,000 fine by the NBA. Rodman also settled the dispute with Amos for $200,000.

The argument has been made that Amos was being a bit dramatic when he needed to be taken away on a stretcher, and that Amos was not kicked in the genitals but in the leg.

The leg or inner thigh would have probably only been worth $100,000 or so as opposed to the $200,000 for where Amos alleges he was kicked.

NBA commissioner David Stern has said Rodman must meet with a league-appointed counselor before he can return, and that counselor will determine if Rodman is fit to return. If he isn't, the suspension will continue until Rodman proves he will no longer put people at risk on the court.

For some reason, Rodman is receiving much support.

In Monday's edition of USA Today many players voiced their opinion. Knicks forward Buck Williams labeled the penalty as "excessive" and Heat guard Tim Hardaway said Rodman didn't deserve an 11 game suspension.

Rodman has sometimes earned questionable calls and technical fouls against him in the past, but now he has proven he truly does deserve to be treated like a child.

This now makes suspension No. 10 in an 11-year career for Rodman. The 11-game suspension earns Rodman a spot in the record books. It is the second longest suspension in league history, second to the Lakers' Kermit Washington, when he received a 26-game suspension in 1977 after punching Houston's Rudy Tomjanovich.

After the game in an interview with SportsChannel, Rodman went off on one of his tirades saying how Amos was putting on an act and made it appear to be a bigger deal than it was.

Ex-Panther coach wants AD slot

Paul Lueken, a candidate for the vacant athletic director post, explains why he should fill the vacancy Tuesday night in the 1895 room.

Lueken eager to come back to Eastern

By BRIAN LESTER
Sports editor

Athletic director finalist Paul Lueken is no stranger to Eastern.

The current athletic director at Slippery Rock (Penn.) University used to work in the Panther athletic department and even applied for the athletic director job when it was open in 1994.

This familiarity with Eastern is part of the reason he applied for the position this time around.

"I think the fact that it's a Division I program and that I'm familiar with it is why I applied for the job," Lueken said. "Also the fact that they (Eastern) moved into the Ohio Valley Conference and they have proved to be competitive in it is a reason."

Lueken is the first of four finalists to visit Eastern and his stay will conclude today with several meetings, which includes a meeting with the Student Athletes Advisory Board and student athletes.

So with Lueken wanting Eastern to remain at the Division I level, the task at hand is working to keep it there. This task begins with focusing on the strengths of Panther athletics.

"We need to build on the strengths of the program, and I want to see it be successful," Lueken said.

Part of being successful, though, begins with the area of funding college athletics at Eastern. Lueken's plans for improving funding include getting the alumni involved.

"We have to be able to reach out to the alumni and tell them your story," Lueken said. "This is done by telling them the positive things about the program."

Lueken also mentioned the importance of corporate sponsorship in order to improve the financial situation at Eastern.

"I think corporate sponsor programs are beneficial, because I thought that they were successful when I left Eastern," Lueken said. "To do this, the programs have to be tailor-made to fit the corporate sponsors program."

"We need to be able to identify a price on different aspects when meeting with those sponsors. You have to have a base and go from there."

George Maihalik, the head football coach at Slippery Rock, mentions that Lueken's personality is a strength that has benefited Slippery Rock — particularly in the area of funding.

"Well, he's definitely a people person," Maihalik said. "He's a great individual to work for and with. He's very supportive of the school, and he has done a great job

Voicing his opinion on the court

Vocal Robinson adjusting to role on hoops squad

By BRIAN LESTER
Sports editor

When junior forward Conya Robinson fouled out of Saturday night's road game against Tennessee Tech, it hardly kept Robinson from playing a role in the game.

The transfer from Mott (Mich.) Community College continued to shout words of encouragement from the Panther bench, as Eastern's basketball team stroled to a 77-66 victory — a game that gave Eastern its fifth straight win and kept the Panthers in a tie for first place in the Ohio Valley Conference.

In that game Robinson failed to score in his 21 minutes of action. However, he did chip in 13 points in Monday night's 83-72 loss to Middle Tennessee.

Being vocal on the court, though, is nothing new to Robinson — a player who has worked his way into the Panthers' starting lineup — since he has been talkative on the court since his prep playing days at Detroit's Finney High School.

"In high school my coach told me I had to be vocal because we had good players who always went for their points but, I was always the one talking to get the guys up for the game," Robinson said. "That (being a vocal leader) carried over ever since because I was a captain in my first season at junior college."

During his junior college career, winning was somewhat routine since Robinson helped guide Mott to a 27-4 mark and a second straight Michigan Junior College Championship. Robinson also racked up all-region and all-conference honors during his second season at Mott.

"Conya is a warrior. He is real aggressive and is probably playing as good as anybody on the team right now."

— Rick Samuels
Head basketball coach

Career-wise, Robinson wrapped up at junior college averaging 13.4 points per game while shooting 60 percent from the floor while being one of three players to sign with a Division I program.

And adjusting to life at the Division I level has been somewhat of a difficult task since the players are a lot stronger compared to players at the junior college level.

"Really it's just that at the Division I level, the guys play a lot smarter and a lot harder," Robinson said.

Still, the improvement in talent has not kept the Detroit native from making his mark on the Panther stat sheet.

Robinson is currently averaging 25 minutes per ball game and is averaging 5.9 points per outing. Robinson has also been efficient in

As evident above, Eastern junior forward Conya Robinson has been a vocal part of his team since transferring from Mott (Mich.) Community College.
